

2012: A new season filled with new expectations and dreams.

For the start of the 2012 tennis season, incredible players from all over the world fan out across Asia to play an array of highly coveted tournaments in some of the world's most unique and beautiful destinations. From India to Qatar, New Zealand to Australia, the season is already underway with highly anticipated matches and unexpected upsets.

Loriet's players Yulia Beygelzimer and Roman Borvanov are among this elite company of talented athletes in their exodus to the East before the ATP and WTA Tours span out across the world to tournaments in South America and Europe, reuniting in the United States.

2012 is a unique year with the London Olympics this July. In 2012, many players and fans will be focused on various international team competitions such as Davis Cup and Fed Cup, where countries go head to head as precursors to the possible rivalries and successes that may take place in London this summer.
