

Tennis Saves: Gastrointestinal Esophageal Cancer Awareness & Benefit

April 6, 2013 - New York, New York

The premier event for Tennis Saves was a tremendous success bringing nearly 70 participants together for an evening of high-energy tennis. Players of all levels participated in a Mixed Doubles Tournament and a Pro/Am Worst Team Tournament to support the fight against Gastrointestinal Esophageal Cancer.

Live music, delicious food and good company made the occasion complete as guests won prizes for answering tennis trivia, participated in the Silent Auction and learned about the fight against Gastrointestinal Esophageal Cancer from Brian Galgay of the Esophageal Cancer Awareness Association (ECAA).

Gastrointestinal Esophageal Cancer is one of the most rare and deadliest forms of cancer. Tennis Saves founder Jason Speirs dedicated the event to his father, who passed away four years ago from the disease.

Loriet Sports Apparel, the United States Professional Teaching Association (USPTA), the United States Tennis Association (USTA), Prince and Nonno's Focacceria all participated in the evening's festivities. "The strong support showed by both guests and sponsors is a testament to the importance of this cause and to the future success of Tennis Saves," said Domenica Karbid, co-founder of Loriet Sports.
